McGILL TAKES LEAD IN RACE FOR RUGBY TITLE BY DOWNING QUEEN'S IN THRILLING GAME, 11 TO 10

ALL THRILLS OF MOVIE FILM IN SATURDAY'S FRAY

Spectacular Game During Last 45 Seconds of Play

ST. GERMAIN A HERO

Brought New Life to Team That Sagged and Wilted During His Absence

Consider the football games of the story book and the movie film. The home team usually wins during the last minute of play. On Saturday afternoon, while the sun was shining down on the Percival Molson Memorial Stadium, and as many people packed into that arena as had ever been in before at one time, McGill clipped 15 seconds of legendary football and made their winning point with but 45 seconds to go.

That thrilled the crowd; so much so that they attempted to crowd the field before time was up. It was a big thrill, but it had nothing on the one that was provided when Ralph St. Germain ran out of the field house just after the last period had begun. He got a greater ovation than anyone ever had before, and he did everything in the world to show that he deserved it. When Ralph returned to the fray, a team that had been lagging and wilting under the great strain took on a new lease of life and fought its way to a well earned victory. The score, McGill 11, Queen's 10, would certainly have read otherwise were it not for the "saint".

Going into the fight an injured man, St. Germain played a good game from the start, but it was not long before a member of the tri-color squad accidently "got" him in a vulnerable spot. He had to go off, but he came back with fight in his eyes, and he fought. Three times in his brilliant career, St. Germain has treated football fans to broken field runs that have brought them to their feet in unadulterated admiration. One of these was last Saturday. Stalking down the field like a phantom from out of a fairy story he carried the ball right down for what looked like a touch. The umpire said he went out into touch, and from the press box it looked as if he had crossed it for a fraction of an inch. Whether it counted for five points or not it was a touchdown as well earned as any.

To believe what happened Saturday you almost had to be right on the spot. To see the remarkable change that was wrought in the team when Ralph returned was a feat that one usually believes only the imagination can conjure with. If you had seen it in the movies, you probably would have said "more bunk". But there it was; certainly something rare in football lore.

Some there are who still try to say that Queen's was the better team of the two. When it is considered that McGill had the undoubted advantage during the first and last period, and were bested only during the middle periods, with St. Germain off the field all of this time, and "Curly" Taylor retired for the greater part, it is obvious that those who would spread a wet blanket over McGill's victory take their facts erroneously.

This is not meant to detract from the splendid fight that the tri-color put up. Out of Kingston came a team unheralded and unsung. Their stars graduated; their great coach Hughes gone; the betting against them, twelve men ran out onto that field and put up a first-class fight. Batstone played as good football as one would wish to see. Combining his brain-power and foot-power he saved many points for his team. Some say, and not without reason that had he and not Warren received the last ball, the game would have ended in a draw. But no blame could be attached to Warren. When he received Tremain's last ball, he was perched way back on his right foot. He was in a bad position for

RECORD CROWD PACKED STANDS LAST SATURDAY

Saturday's game saw a record crowd, amounting to over 13,000 people in the Molson Stadium. This number exceeds the record set in 1921 at the.. McGill-Varsity.. game during the McGill Reunion. 2129 held season tickets and 5457 reserved seats were sold. 1824 school children paid admission and 1000 student tickets were received, while in the general rush seats there were 2,313. Only 80 reserved seats were unsold. As the seating capacity of the Stadium is set at about 13,000 it is estimated that about 800 people stood or sat around the edge of the field throughout the game.

McGILL DEFEATED IN ENGLISH RUGBY

M.A.A.A. Wins McTier Cup By 3-0 Victory

EXCITING MATCH

Red Team Were Weak But Showed Good Combination

The McGill English rugger team lost their McTier cup match to the M.A.A.A. Saturday afternoon, but only by a very narrow margin. The Score was 3 points to (1 try) to 0. although allowance should be made for the M.A.A.A. being without both Seager and McCoy, two of their best backs.

In the first half the M.A.A.A. had the best of the play all the time. They were continually on or over the McGill twenty five and several times their forwards dribbed the ball across the line but even then they couldn't manage to score for the McGill defence were wide awake.

Directly after half time however McGill attacked very hard and gave the M.A.A.A. an anxious quarter of an hour but they too found the defence too good for them. During this time the three quarters showed some very good combination, and several times the man with the ball was only stopped just short of the goal line. The forwards also were playing a very good game.

But after the middle of the second half M.A.A.A. regained their superiority and pressed very hard. Even then however, they could only score once. Their try was made by King. After a good pass by Marpole, and was unconverted.

Of the two packs of forwards, M.A.A.A. were the better in the Scrum, chiefly due to their greater wieght, but the McGill men certainly had the advantage in the loose. They were quick to get on the ball and they had it out better to their backs when occasion arose.

The McGill backs were all very good in the defence, and also gave that very good exhibition of attack in the second half. The M.A.A.A. backs combined nicely, and also used good judgement in picking for touch. The kicking by the McGill team, with the exception of one two, was the worst part of their play. It was usually hard and far, but in the middle of the field which in nine cases out of ten, is no use.

RHODES SCHOLARSHIP

Candidate From Saskatchewan Will be Chosen

To students whose home is in Saskatchewan and to those who have studied in that province it may be of interest that the Rhodes Scholar for that province will be chosen on November 25. Applications or enquiries for particulars should be sent to D. P. McColl, Superintendent of Education, Regina, Saskatchewan.

Candidates for the scholarship must be British subjects and unmarried. They must be over nineteen years of age and not more than twenty-five on the first of October. They must have completed their sophomore year at the university, or have spent two years in some college or educational institution.

In applying for the scholarship candidates should send a certificate of age, a full statement of where they have received their education, together with testimonials from masters, professors and authorities under whom they have studied. Students who were born in Saskatchewan and students who have been educated there are eligible for the scholarship.

Complete instructions and particulars can be found on the notice board in the Arts Building.

BERET IS BURIED MIDST CEREMONY AND MUCH POMP

University of Montreal Stages Huge Parade Saturday Night

MANY FLOATS

Performance Marks End of Initiation of Freshmen at Local French College

Amidst traditional pomp and ceremony, the students of the University of Montreal buried the beret on Saturday night. The burying of the beret, or tam, as English-speaking students know it, is an annual function at the French University, and is attended by professors and students alike.

A large number of floats, as picturesque as any forming a previous parade were in evidence, and their general make-up was a distinct tribute to the artistic ability of the students from St. Denis Street.

Commerce, Medicine, and all other phases of endeavor were represented as the illuminated procession wound its way up Park Avenue, along Fletcher's Field, where the ceremony was brought to an end by the bonfire in which the tams were burned. There were a number of speeches during the course of the evening and practically everyone who took part was given an opportunity of exercising his lungs, either officially or otherwise.

The ceremony of the burying of the tam is one that has been carried out for many years by the U. of M. students and is understood to have had its origin among the universities of France. The ceremony mars the end of the traditional hatred and disdain of the upperclassmen for the frosh, and when the tam is buried, peace reigns between the newcomers to the University and those who have been there before.

The little black tams have been somewhat in evidence on the McGill campus during the last few days, as interested students from down east visited the local campus as football fans, some to watch the Loyola-McGill game and others to see their own team in action against the McGill intermediates on Saturday morning.

But the tam will be worn no more; at least not until another freshman

WOMEN STUDENTS HELPED IN PARADE

Students Take Part in Monster Parade After Game

The parade after the game was helped a great deal by the presence of women students. Without them the parade would not have been made as picturesque. Besides lending to the appearance of the parade, they showed that they were not afraid to use their voices in the old McGill yell and the songs which were led by the band.

The rooters felt that the win for McGill should be celebrated by a parade, and there were very few who felt otherwise, and fell into line behind the band and started. They made their way down Universty street to the Union where the band dropped out. The rest of the rooters started off to show the town what had happened when the Red Team did all that was expected of them, and gave the McGill yells and songs for the benefit of the people on St. Catherine street and in the Mount Royal Hotel.

Several of the supporters left the fold here, but there were still enough left to carry on. All the autos helped out by blowing their horns. All the street cars that got in our way when they serpentined their way down St. Catherine street, had their trolleys sent skywards, much to the disgust of the conductors.

All through the parade the conduct of the rooters, as always, showed the old McGill spirit. The parade broke up when it returned to the Union.

SAAR VALLEY COMMISSION WORKS WELL

Major G. W. Stephens of Commission Spoke Last Night

AT THE FORUM

France and Germany Drawing Closer Together Thereby Forestalling Disputes

"My contention is that it will not be necessary to wait until 1935 to solve the problem of the Saar", said Major G. W. Stephens at the opening meeting of the Peoples' Forum held in the Church of the Messiah last night. "The relatins between France and Germany are becoming more and more knit as the years go by, as is seen by the fact that a trade agreement has recently been concluded between them", continued Major Stephens. This is the first audience of his own race that the speaker had addressed in four years during which time he had been the President of the Commission which had been set up by the League of Nations to rule the Saar Valley until 1935 under the terms of the Treaty of Versailles.

"Civilized man has gained his art, his laws his literature and other forms of his social welfare from the East but from the British alone can it be said that he has obtained the art of government." Major Stephens began his speech to a none too representative audience of the Peoples' Forum. The Government of the Saar began in 1920 under the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles to give back to France some compensation for the coal that Germany had, robbed her of during the Great War. The League of Nations organized a commission of five men to undertake this duty and the stipulation is that one member shall be French, one a citizen of the Saar Valley, and the other three from any of the countries in the League excepting Germany and France. This government is to last until 1935 when a plebscite is to be taken to decide the future of the government. The speaker in answer to a question which was put later on stated that he thought that the people would undoubtedly go back to German rule for the desire for their Fatherland is uppermost in their mind

MORT GIBBONS WINS DIVING CHAMP'NSHIP

Dominion Championships Held at Ottawa Saturday

(Special to McGill Daily)

Ottawa, Oct. 16.—For the second time in three seasons Mort Gibbons, the star diver of the McGill swimming team, and captain of Polo for this year, is Canadian indoor fancy diving champion. Helping Montreal to carry off nearly every place in the program Mort won the 1927 champion Saturday night. Second place was taken by another Montreal man, Chris Pope of the M.A.A.A.

Gibbons first win was scored in the M.A.A.A. tank in the spring of 1926, when strong opposition was furnished by a team from Toronto. Mort was limited in this meet by the lowness of the M.A.A.A. ceiling, but at Ottawa he was able to sail up in the air in his Isanders and Swans in the way that makes his dives perfect. The only thing hampering the McGill man was the fact that he was not used to the board, but seeing, as Mort has said, that if the board was a poor one, it would not be able to bear the strain when he took his tremendous spring and as no reports of breakages have come from Ottawa, it seems that the Capital board passed the test.

This is a great opening for McGill's aquatic season which, from the material that has turned out so far, looks as if it is going to be one of the most successful in years. Both senior and junior water polo teams have a good chance for the championship in their respective leagues. At the practice Monday, Coach Harold Fisk will begin to choose the two teams, so it is essential that all be on hand.

CHANCELLOR'S BIRTHDAY

Congratulations Are Extended to E. W. Beatty, Chancellor of McGill University and President and Chairman of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Who Celebrated His Fiftieth Birthday Yesterday.

INTERMEDIATES WIN GAME FROM U.OF.M.

Team Ties With Loyola for First Place

SIMPSON RUNS 50 YARDS

Score One Point in First Quarter—Five Touches in Last Three Periods

The McGill Intermediates made it two straight on Saturday morning at the Stadium when they rode roughshod over the U. of M. ruggers to the tune of 26-1. Five touchdowns and a rouge made up the score and this just about represented the difference between the two squads.

The red and white continued to show improved form and the return of Eddie Robbins to the half-line gave the team a scoring punch which it had lacked in previous games. However the Frenchmen provided little real opposition and the count might easily have been larger.

Gordie Hughes' proteges had to be content with a single point in the first quarter but from then on they piled up the score at will, with three touches coming in the second period and one more in each of the third and fourth.

The U. of M. accounted for their only point shortly before half-time when some quick tackling by the French wings resulted in a rouge.

The feature of the game was a fine 50 yard run for a touch by Dutch Simpson who turned in a fine all-round performance.

As Loyola also won, the red and maroon teams are still tied for first place in the league standing, with two wins and one defeat.

ANNUAL BOARD MEETS

The Editorial Board of the McGill Annual will meet in the offices today at five o'clock. As the work of editing of the Annual must begin immediately if the book is to be published at an early date it is expected that all members will attend this meeting. It is likely that those who are to fill the position of editor-in-chief and managing editor will be named following this meeting. The other positions on the board are alloted by those who fill these positions. The editor and a managing editor are chosen by their predecessors.

TREMAIN BREAKS TIE THIRTY SECONDS BEFORE END OF GAME BY KICKING ROUGE TO WARREN

Jack Little Crashes Through Queen's Line in First Period for Touchdown — Tremain Made Perfect Place Kick—Ralph St. Germain Receives Tremendous Ovation on Re-entering Play in Fourth Quarter — Cliff Howard Scores Five Points for Tricolor—Batstone Counted Three on a Drop — Warren, Queen's Half, Was Sensational

By staging a dramatic rally in the final quarter the McGill senior football team came from behind on Saturday to defeat Queen's in the second intercollegiate game of the year 11 to 10. The red and white entered the last period with the score standing at 10 to 8 in favor of the tricolor but suddenly swept all opposition before them to creep up point by point and win the game just thirty seconds before the whistle blew.

A record crowd variously estimated at something over thirteen thousand people saw a crippled McGill team take the lead early in the first period when Jack Little, red and white captain, crashed over the line for a touchdown which was not converted. But the lead was short-lived. Before the first fifteen minutes had elapsed Captain Cliff Howard of Queen's had duplicated Little's feat to tie the score at 5 to 5.

In the second stanza Harry Batstone, still a great bckfield star, kicked two rouges to put Queen's two points in the lead when half time came around. A beautiful place kick by Ken Tremin again brought McGill to the front towards the middle of the third period but again Queen's retaliated when Batstone lifted a drop-kick squarely between the uprights to make the score 10 to 8.

McGill visibly crumpling towards the end of that third quarter but began to pick-up as the teams changed ends for the final fifteen minutes. Only one thing was needed to instil a little more fight into a badly crippled squad which was beginning to feel the effects of the hard tackling Queen's wings. The stage was all set for a dramatic climax and the watching thousands were not disappointed.

Ralph St. Germain had begun the game despite his baddly injured foot and before the first quarter had ended was forced to retire from the game after he had been kicked on the chest by one of the Queen's Players. For two periods he remained within the field house trying to regain his strength and anxious to re-enter the fray. The last quarter drew around and still the galopping ghost was in no condition to go on the field. But McGill were two points down and that was enough for Ralph.

The backfield star struggled to the door of the field house, stumbled down the steps and painfully strode along the cinder path to the McGill bench. His appearance at the door had been the signal for an outburst of cheering unparalleled in the history of the great enclosure but it was nothing compared with what was to come. As he plodded along over thirteen thousand people arose and gave the popular running half a tremendous ovation. They shouted his name, implored him to go in and win for Old McGill, and for a full two minutes pandemonium was let loose.

St. Germain went in but not without a protest on the part of Coach Shaughnessy who was directing the team from the press box at the top of the stands. The McGill mentor felt that Ralph was not in fit condition to play any further and when telephonic communication failed he rushed down through the stands to the edge of the field in an endeavor to prevent the substitution but he was too late.

In the meantime the psychological effect on the McGill team was remarkable. Tremain had made the score 10 to 9 by kicking a rouge just before St. Germain came onto the field. A great run by Jack Little again put McGill in scoring position and when the Red and White captain's onside went wide Batstone was downed for a point and the score was tied.

Three times the red and white appeared to have won the game during those last, long five minutes. First Tremain kicked a rouge to the far corner of the field but the referee ruled that the ball had crossed the touch line before it went over the goal line and gave Queen's possession one yard out. Then Ralph St. Germain ran for forty yards down the sidelines for what appeared to be a certain touchdown but again the fates were against McGill and the officials declared he had stepped over the touchline. It was a heartbreaking decision and with the minutes rapidly fleeting by the possibility of a tie game became more and more probable. Finally with but thirty seconds of playing time remaining Ken Tremain lifted a high one to Warren who was playing alongside Batstone on the Queen's backfield. He was downed for a point to give McGill victory.

As a spectacle Saturday's exhibition could hardly be surpassed. The crowd was on its feet for nearly the whole of the last quarter. Three times they cheered a McGill victory—the third time the officials allowed the score and by that time the frantic fans rushed on the field only to be chased off to allow the final half minute's play to take place. At last it was all over and the great throng rushed and surged over the sidelines to carry the red and white squad shoulder high from the field.

There were three outstanding men on the McGill team. The first, Ralph St. Germain, played for less than half the game. The other two, Jack Little and Ken Tremain, went the route. Tremain especially in the second half played as if inspired. He plunged through the line for great gains, ran around the ends and kicked in faultless fashion.

It was no fault of Tremain's that his wings were not down the field in time to tackle the Queen's halves. He was not given adequate protection by the McGill first line of defence and as a result all of his punts were hurried. Nor can the McGill ends be blamed. A man can only travel so fast and the red and white outsides did not lack speed.

Queen's on the other hand had a kick formation that both prevented the red and white from rushing through and blocking and at the same time allowed their wings to get down the field in

The McGill Industry Club will hold its initial meeting at 5 today in the Chemistry Building. The object of this club is to bring the students into actual contact with the practical applications of Chemistry. The program includes trips to mills, plants and factories while they are in actual operation. Excursions are held to the St. Lawrence Sugar Refinery, Industrial Alcohol, Imperial Oil Refineries, etc. Meetings are frequently held at which papers are read by various members of the Club. Discussions following these readings are often keen and interesting. As membership is open to the Club, it is hoped that a large number of new members will be present.

MONTREAL, MONDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1927.

THE CHAMPIONSHIP ISN'T OURS

THE chief lesson for us to learn—it was forcibly brought out at Saturday's game—is that, no matter how near we are to the coveted championship, we haven't yet secured it.

Our team has travelled to Toronto and won handily, and it has given thousands of almost frantic supporters in Montreal a real scare. Of course, McGill were at a disadvantage with one or two players on the sick list, and some only just recovering. The Kingstonians were not at full strength however, so matters were about evened up.

Fighting ability, rugby technique, dash and speed, college spirit, will not make McGill lose. Our men have shown themselves to be a team that is likely to go down in history as one of the finest intercollegiate rugby machines. One thing might bring about a Waterloo, and that is self confidence.

Our chancellor places modesty among the greatest attributes of man, and among those which are most important in success. We have no reason to believe that McGill's senior rugby team are unduly conceited or unduly modest, but they are human, and human beings can't help becoming self-confident, although they would deny it angrily if accused of it.

Many have said that self-confidence—otherwise described sometimes as 'temperament' lost two major championships for McGill last year. This condition of mind can only be attacked when it is taken for granted even by those who do not believe themselves to be feeling it.

If it is only possible for McGill senior rugbyists to go into battle next time just as if they had lost two games instead of winning them; just as if they were up against a superior team, and had to do a little more than they thought would be their best, they would be cool, determined, and ready for the utmost in team-work, against a display of brilliancy.

Brilliancy is all very well in its place, and the ability behind the brilliancy is necessary to a really good player. But a showy play measured against one of team-work will often bring the one point essential for victory, or pave the way for the gaining of a vital point by the other side.

One more game at home, and one away—we can win which one we like and get the championship. But we hope for hard fights, for as our team are fairly sure of the championship, they will have even harder opposition when they seek the Dominion title.

The college is interested in them as never before. The rooters will need no artificial encouragement to make them turn out and support our last home game. We hope so anyway.

OUR PROFESSOR-ATHLETES

IF it were not for the fact that students themselves are taking so much interest in sport this year, the faculty would put them to shame. Fifty members of the faculty staff are taking part in sport—and that's only counting one sport, golf. Not only that, the faculty members showed themselves skilful, as well as game, by winning from the students in that sport.

They defeated the students whose selected team won a complete victory from other colleges last year.

The shining victory on Friday brings two questions to our mind. First, why do they not play other universities. Second, why do they not try their luck at other sports?

The students would be delighted to see a selected group of McGill golfers, chosen from the professorate, engage in a thrilling match with the learned ones of Queen's and gloriously winning as the last foursome strode home to the lunchroom. Perhaps then the Scarlet Key society or the students' club could arrange for a grand banquet in the Union after the game, and offer to their superiors a meal which the dietician computes to consist of the proper number of calories for thinking and golfing brains!

Then they must not forget other sports. We know that some professors unbend far enough to engage in a strenuous chess game, but chess is not sanctioned by the department of physical education despite the training in bodily rigidity.

How nice and thrilling it would be to see a professor's assault-at-arms, for instance, and watch with bated breath the contest for the heavyweight championship of McGill. What joy as some enthusiastic professor-fencer stuck his rapier into an opposing professor's diaphragm! If this could be achieved, they might even try rugby. If Canadian rugby proved too dangerous English rugby would be awfully "jolly", especially the scrum. What a mass of learning would be seen together as the referee threw the rugby ball between the seas of opposing learned legs!

Perhaps however, they might think that such performances would impair their dignity. But surely they are not very much less dignified than curling, which very often means dancing and skipping gracefully down a rink with a wildly-moving broom behind, before and between one's legs.

Perhaps golf is the only proper professor's game, but in all sincerity we would like to see professors enjoying close fellowship with students, not only in the golf course, but also on the tennis courts, curling and skating rinks—not as judges, timers, scorers, advisers and so on, but as opponents and very worthy ones we are sure they would be.

REAL COLLEGIANS NOW

THE sophomores have considered that the period of transition between the verdant state and the collegiate state, has passed satisfactorily, and the freshmen have completed their course creditably so that the sophomore "barbers" did not have to pluck them—in other words, pluck the hair from their heads.

Now we wish to greet the freshman classes as fellow-collegians, and point out to them that the way of the university social life is shortly to be made very easy for them.

The first collegiate social event of the year arranged specially for them is the freshman dinner, taking place at Strathcona Hall next Wednesday. This year's sophomores will remember the 1926 dinner with delight. It was a success in every way, carried on in an informal manner, and including speeches, personal introductions and songs as well as a variety of really good eatables.

This year Professor W. T. Waugh is the speaker, and freshmen who are taking History I will know something of Professor Waugh's speaking ability, but by no means all. Professor Waugh has a universal reputation for wit as well as for learning, and he keeps in close touch with student life always.

Members of the board of S.C.A. directors will form a reception committee, and see that everybody is acquainted before the dinner is over.

Not only first-year "freshmen" are urged to come to the dinner, but also freshmen to the university, who have entered second year Arts on the strength of a senior matriculation of first year Medicine or Dentistry, having transferred from some other college.

Other events, we hope, will follow this one; arranged so as not to interfere with studies, which soon will loom up as serious matters in college life.

CONDENSED COMMENT

AN ACTION THAT WE APPRECIATE

We learn from authoritative sources that immediately after the game, the Queen's rugby team in a body, visited the McGill dressing rooms and congratulated our team on their win.

The victory might easily have brought bitterness in its train. It was only in the last minutes of the game, after a fight that veered as much one way as the other. The congratulations came spontaneously, and immediately after the struggle. We have heard of disgraceful fighting in rugby, but happily such distinguished exponents of the game as the members of renowned college teams can set an example directly opposite to that too often set.

time to stop the McGill halfbacks. Batstone, who was kicking superbly though perhaps erratically always took his time and the red and white were unable to gain much by the turning back of kicks.

Jack Little went into the game with a sprained ankle but despite this handicap was able to hold out for the entire sixty minutes. His all around work contributed to the McGill win in no uncertain way. It was Little who held the McGill backfield together when St. Germain was off with an injury. It was Little who made McGill's only touchdown to put McGill in the lead and again it was Little who attempted an onside kick which failed but nevertheless tied the score.

Ken Tremain's long kick-off right at the beginning of the game paved the way for a McGill touchdown which Little secured after St. Germain had electrified the crowd by making a thirty five yard run to put the ball on the Queen's five-yard line. McGill seemed to be well away to an easy victory and after one frantic outburst the crowd settled down to watch a McGill walk-away. But in this they were disappointed.

Harry Batstone had as a partner on the backfield a newcomer from Western University by the name of Warren Warren proved to be the find of the year as far as the tricolor was concerned and turned in a stellar performance as a running half. Midway through the first quarter he received a pass from Batstone and broke away around the end for a sixty yard run to put Queen's in a position for a touchdown with the ball in McGill's five yard line. Kilgour, another Queen's recruit made three yards on the first down and it remained for Cliff Howard, Queen's captain, to go through for a touch to tie the score. "Bubs" Britton, like "Curly" Taylor failed to make the convert. It was St. Germain who stopped Warren from making his long run result in a touch.

Shortly after St. Germain was forced to leave the field and was replaced by D'Arcy Doherty, freshman halfback who, while he did not possess the experience of the veteran St. Germain nevertheless did well in his first appearance in senior football.

Queen's had McGill on the defensive throughout the entire second period. Batstone was finally able to kick to Little behind his own line and the McGill captain was downed for a rouge. A fumble by Doherty gave Queen's a golden opportunity for another touchdown, but Sutton, who scooped up the loose ball failed to take the advantage thus gained and instead of dribbling the ball fell on it. Batstone tried a drop but he kicked into the scrimmage and Queen's lost ten yards, when one of the tricolor players recovered the oval. A minute later Batstone lifted the ball to Little who was again rouged for Queen's seventh point.

McGill came on the field after half time fighting mad, determined to stop the Queen's attack and win the game. Batstone kicked off for Queen's, but his effort was short and Boyd Millen picked up the ball to run fifty yards. Penalties and run backs by the Queen's halves forced McGill back to centre field slowly but surely the red seemed to have lost their opportunity to score. Little however succeeded in passing out the ball to Tremain who ran around right end from his fifty-yard line to Queen's thirty. Doherty crashed through for five and on the next play Bazin held the ball while Ken Tremain made a beautiful place kick to give McGill three points and put them in the lead. But again Queen's went to the fore when after a McGill fumble on the thirty yard line Batstone booted a perfect drop squarely through the uprights.

The fourth quarter began with McGill two points down, but the Queen's squad seemed to have its bolt. The return of Ralph St. Germain injected a new lease of life into the rapidly wilting red and white team and after Tremain had added one point on a rouge. Little's onside pass went astray for another which tied the score. Then came the most dramatic episode of the afternoon.

Tremain kicked to Batstone who was downed behind his line when for a rouge. The stands sensing victory went wild, but the point was not allowed, and Queen's were given possession one yard out. Batstone soon booted out of danger but Ralph went around right end and streaked down the sideline for a touchdown. Again the enthusiasm of the stands was held in check when the officials, rightly or wrongly, ruled that he had stepped over the touchline in his mad dash down the field.

Three time Tremain kicked over the goal line to Batstone but the McGill wings were unable to get down the field in time to prevent Batstone from returning the ball and saving a point. Finally, with thirty seconds to go, Tremain lifted a long one to Warren who tried to run out but was caught by the McGill wings and downed for the winning point.

REPERTORY THEATRE GUILD PRODUCTIONS

The Repertory Theatre Guild of New York has left many pleasant memories behind for Montreal people. Their performances were well received by audiences which practically filled His Majesty's Theatre. They displayed a great knowledge of stage technique, and their acting was a continual treat.

One noticed how accurately they copied the English accents, for instance, in their rendering of A. A. Milne's comedy "Mr. Rim Passes By." In that feat there was no mockery, and no burlesque, the accent was unobtrusive and yet perfectly recognizable, and what is more, varied according to the type of English person portrayed.

Another notable play presented by them was Bernard Shaw's "Arms and the Man" and in this more difficult production the same close attention to every detail and accurate interpretation was a constant feast of delight to the discriminating theatre-goer.

Their return will be welcomed. And it seems that at last Montreal is showing an appreciation for the spoken drama, for our actor-visitors nowadays are getting far better receptions than they did only a few years ago.

kicking. If he had tried to boot out that ball he probably would have fallen backward; he may have dropped the ball and given McGill five points instead of one.

Of course Warren had everything to gain and nothing to lose by trying to kick at that juncture. But an excited football player at a point such as that can not be expected to unravel the mysteries of the mathematical elements of chance. He chose not to kick and McGill won the game.

The eyes of the technicians were glued to Ike Sutton when he pulled the boner that cost his team five points. There was a loose ball. It fell the lot of Ike Sutton to use his head and his feet. Instead he used his hands alone. Had he dribbled that ball down the field instead of picking it up, Queen's may easily have added another five points to her score. But he did the wrong thing.

It was one of the plays that contributed to making the game a truly exciting spectacle. There are many who agree that it was the most exciting football game they have seen.

Before the battle the Queen's team said that McGill was overrated; they were wrong. On Saturday morning all McGill said that Queen's wouldn't do a thing; they were wrong too.

Will Arts sophs who have not already handed their names in see that their names are put on the list which will be left in Bill Gentleman's office this morning.

Colgate Defeats Columbia and Brown is Decisively Defeated by Harvard

New York, Oct. 15.—Fighting every inch of the way although showing in the last half only flashes of the speed and power exemplified in the first two periods in which its scores were made, Captain Pratt's eleven showed that it not only is developing a punch to deliver, but has got its heart back and will start for Dartmounth week, not on its heels, but on its toes.

A year ago Harvard had two touchdowns and then was beaten by the Holy Cross whirlwind of forward passes. Today the Crimson got a one-touchdown lead, kicked a goal and soon after saw the Crusaders charge up the field for a score, which, however, did not produce a goal. The Crimson's come-back was immediate, the ball being driven and thrown over three-quarters of the length of the playing field, the finishing color to the touchdown march being a forward pass completed by Fordyce, a plugging wing of three years standing, at a point twelve yards from the Holy Cross goal line, from where Fordyce raced with an open field ahead.

New Haven, Conn., Oct. 15.—The Iron Team of Brown, that first gained fame in the Yale Bowl a year ago, crumpled and was crushed by a bolt from the blue in the form of Bruce Caldwell here today. His flying feet led the Yale eleven to a 19-0 victory before 40,000 spectators, who half filled the great gray structure that nestles in the Connecticut hills.

Three times the fighting Brown line turned back the surging Blue backs within fifteen yards of a touchdown, but the steady assault eventually wore down the resistance even of the Iron Men and three touchdowns slipped over.

Two of the scores were accounted for by Caldwell. In the second quarter he plunged twenty-two yards in five successive starts to score, and in the fourth period he put the finishing touches on a 79-yard march down the field when he circled Brown's left end, shook off three tacklers and carried two more over the goal line with him as he came to the end of a 25-yard run.

New York, Oct. 15.—Colgate defeated Columbia 13 to 7, at Baker Field yesterday afternoon, before 15,000 persons and proved that the Blue and White team is about the best that has graced Morningside Heights since Coach Crowley took charge. In as even a contest as has been played thus far this season, Colgate was a jump faster, a bit harder, and probably quite a little bit smarter than the local eleven.

The up-State university, playing without two of its plunging backs, blasted through Columbia for two touchdowns with as great a display of the scoring punch as has been seen in a long time. This happened in the third and fourth periods after the Maroon had been on the defensive throughout the first half. Then when most everyone supposed the Columbia team had shot its bolt and played itself out, the Blue and White opened up a passing attack that net-

TEAM ANNOUNCED

Tennis Players For Intercollegiate Tourney Picked

The singles team to represent McGill in the Intercollegiate tennis tournament this week-end on the courts of the Outremont Tenns club, was announced last night by Manager J. P. McInerney. The squad is composed of Jack Wright, J. P. McInerney, R. Sabourin and C. H. Peters. The first doubles team is composed of Wright and McInerney, while the personnel of the second will be chosen from among Peters, Sabourin, W. F. McMartin and F. C. Holt.

Sabourin a newcomer to McGill tennis activities, gained his place by his defeat on Saturday of C. H. Peters. Sabourin played aggressive tennis and should make a good showing in the intercollegiate tourney.

On Saturday, McMartin defated F. C. Holt a member of last year's squad by a 7-5, 6-2 score.

Today the following are asked to be at the courts at 2 o'clock. W. F. McMartin, R. Sabourin, C. E. Pacaud, F. C. Holt and C. H. Peters. A doubles team composed of Sabourin and Peters will play three combinations McMartin-Pacaud, McMartin-Holt and Pacaud-Holt.

FINAL TRAINING FOR TRACK TEAM

Nineteen Men Will Make Trip to Kingston

LEAVE ON THURSDAY

Trials to be Held This Afternoon For Five Events

With its final week's training before the big intercollegiate fray in Kingston on Friday full upon them, the track team will be having a busy time during the next few days. Finishing touches in training, a few pointers gleaned from watching the performances at the interfaculty meet, all these should add to the capabilities of the men who will entrain for the Limestone City on Thursday.

Nineteen men only will make the trip, and as many of the results last week were inconclusive, this means that there are places to be fought for in several divisions. The strongest possible aggregation from McGill will therefore enter the intercollegiate only if those who were runners up in these events turn up today for final tests, and give the coach a last chance of guaging their capabilities.

The line-up of men who will compete in the intercollegiate meet is practically completed except for those in the Javelin throw, the High Jump, the Pole Vault, the Hurdles and the Four-fourty yard run. The complete team will be announced Tuesday, but today, the final tests in the above-mentioned events will be held, and the showing made will be of great influence in the choice of men who will make the trip.

It is almost certain that the trials this afternoon will bring forth all the men who competed in the trial events on Friday. In the Javelin Throw, there is a new man who is almost certain to put in a spectacular showing this afternoon, and it would not surprise the dopesters if he ran away with the trial event.

It is urged by the coach that all men who have not made the team, should nevertheless continue to practice, and train regularly. On Wednesday, the final timing runs of the season will be run off, and all men who are not going to Kingston are urged to be on hand, in order that their improvement during the year may be noted. This is quite important, as it will give added impetus to those who have improved during the fall, and will show the coach which men he should concentrate on when training starts next fall. In this way, an advance may be had on the pissibilities for next year, when a big effort will be made to turn the tables on Varsity, and put out a team that will defeat them as decisively as they were defeated before 1926.

DOWN TO BRASS TACKS

With Robert W. Jones.

RALPH ST. GERMAIN

No greater tribute has ever been paid to a McGill football player than that accorded to Ralph St. Germain by over twelve thousand people at the Stadium on Saturday afternoon. No one ever deserved such a tremendous ovation more than the red and white backfield star did at the beginning of that eventful fourth quarter.

A greater sample of sheer pluck, iron nerve and absolute unselfishness would be hard to find anywhere, anytime.

Ralph St. Germain started on the half line in Saturday's game when he was barely able to stand. After playing the greater part of the first quarter he received a nasty kick in the vicinity of his heart and was forced to retire to the field house, limping badly and obviously in great pain. Ralph was down but by no means out.

McGill fought desperately during the next two periods but after "Curly" Taylor had been assisted from the field just before half time the pace began to tell and the crippled red and white machine began to crumble.

Then it happened. Going into the last quarter with the score 10 to 8 against them, the redmen stood with their backs to the wall. Suddenly a huge roar broke forth from a thousand throats. The great crowd gasped, took its eyes from the field for an instant, and turned to look for the cause of the disturbance.

Over twelve thousand people saw an unforgettable sight—a sight which few, if any,, will ever forget. They rose as one man and cheered—yelled—shouted themselves hoarse. They saw a lone figure in a red sweater bearing a white number "4" hobble down the steps of the field house and gamely stagger along the cinder track to the players' bench. Slowly and methodically with an obvious effort Ralph St. Germain—for it was he—drew on his helmet. Pandemonium reigned as St. Germain rose from the bench and strode painfully onto the field.

They saw a shining example of loyalty to one's team; they saw a man who possesses more grit, more of the never-say-die spirit than do a dozen ordinary mortals; they saw a game, fine, upstanding example of Canadian manhood.

The effect on the McGill team was marvellous to behold. The red and white suddenly took on a new lease of life and finally broke through to tie the score and then win the game. If any one man is to be singled out as responsible for the red team's success that man is St. Germain. Ralph St. Germain, the man who forgot himself and gave his all for the team.

FURTHER TRACK TRIALS WILL BE RUN OFF TODAY

As results on Friday at the Interfaculty meet were inconclusive in the following events, these events will be run off as a series of trial tests this afternoon. The events are the Javelin Throw, High Jump, Pole Vault, Hurdles, and 440 yard sprint.

It is very important that all the men who won and who were runners up in these events on Friday should be on hand and take part in these trials, as the men who make the trip to Kingston will be chosen very largely from the winners today.

VARSITY WINS SOCCER

(Special to McGill Daily

Toronto, Oct. 16.—Varsity defeated R.M.C. here today by two goals to one in the first soccer game in the intercollegiate circuit. Withers, Toronto forward counted the first point for Varsity while Ferguson was responsible for the blue and white's second tally.

R.M.C. received the only point when the Toronto goal-keeper attempted to block the ball with his hand and accidentally batted it us.

TUXIS ALUMNI WILL CONVENE TOMORROW

D. R. Poole to Discuss Developments in Boys' Work

A meeting of interest to former Tuxis men will take place at Strathcona Hall at five on Tuesday afternoon, when Mr. D. R. Poole, new National Secretary of the Canadian Boy's Work Board, in succession to Taylor Statten, will meet the Tuxis Alumni. This will be the second meeting of the Tuxis Alumni for the year, and all former members of the movement are invited to attend.

Mr. Poole will discuss recent developments in Canadian boy's work, and will bring forward suggestions regarding the contribution the Tuxis Alumni might make to the movement in Montreal and to the undergraduates at McGill. The Tuxis Alumni Association, according to Mr. Poole, is a new development in Canada, and considerable interest will be taken in tomorrow's meeting and discussion.

REDS AND BLUES PLAY GOOD GAME

McGill Soccer Team Meets Varsity Next Saturday

The Reds and Blues, two McGill soccer teams, the Reds consisting of regulars, and the Blues of men contending for places, fought it out on the campus yesterday; the Blues were assisted by John Scott and Charles Seaton, two distinguished McGill players of bygone years. Their presence was much appreciated by the regulars and did much to steady the playing of the Blues. The Reds kicked off and showed fine forward combination, but the Blues held them back by their good full-back clearance. Just before half-time Reds got away and McKinnon, beating Taylor, shot the ball across to centre to be passed by Watt to Mollo, who scored. Red—1, Blue—0. No further scoring resulted during the game.

Seaton, Scott and Doherty were best for the losers, while it is hard to pick a Red better than another. McGill meets Toronto Varsity next Saturday and are in fine shape and hoping to give their opponents stiff opposition.

Line-up:

PRINCETON AND YALE WIN GAMES IN U.S. RUGBY

ted a touchdown. It was a great finish to a fine game.

Princeton, N. J., October 15.—Scoring touchdowns in the first and third periods and assuming the offensive for nearly the entire game, Princeton defeated a scrappy Washington and Lee team here this afternoon, 13 to 0, and heads toward Cornell with its slate still clean. Baruch's drop kick for the point after the first touchdown was blocked, but a pass netted the other try for the extra point.

Princeton worked out its first score about midway in the first period, taking a Washington and Lee kick at midfield and sending Ed Wittmer smashing off the tackles for the parade to the score. Wittmer finally went over.

Princeton used its passes but little at the start and only once in this march did the ball travel through the air, a pass from Baruch to Miles off the right end contributed seven yards to the march.

The second Princeton touchdown came after a series of Tiger threats. Princeton carried the ball down to the Washington and Lee 18-yard line, but lost the ball when a Baruch pass on fourth down bounced off the outstretched finger of Red Owen.

West Point, N. Y., October. 15.—The Army made a thrilling finish today to defeat Davis and Elkins by a 27 to 6 score. The game was one of the most interesting ever played in the West Point Stadium and kept the 6,000 spectators on edge until well down in the final quarter. Army's attack was slow to find itself today, but, once under way, although it had previously been turned back with almost monotonous regularity, it was not to be denied. The Cadets rolled up four touchdowns in the last few minutes of the game. Fumbles in the backfield by ball carriers and what looked to some like poor selections of plays cost Army several chances to score in the early stages of the game.

Cambridge, Mass., October, 15—Holy Cross could not scale the Harvard battlements today failing to carry its banner for a third successive time into the Crimson's courtyard. Dangerous always, yet always trailing with its catapults lacking general accuracy, Holy Cross, as in all recent games, scored a touchdown, but Harvard made two, winning by a 1-to-6 count.

The 45,000 who witnessed the battle from the stadium inclines, the colonnades, the horse shoe roof, deep running end stands and benches running to the field from the concrete walls, saw a very different Harvard team than that which was mentally so unalert against Purdue a week ago.

Baltimore, Md., October 15.—The proud pennants of a Navy team that had remained unbeaten since 1925, and that stood out as one of the strongest claimants to championship honors last year, were lowered today in the Baltimore Stadium by the same high-geared dreadnought machine that administered the only setback to Army in 1926.

Before a gathering of 60,000 spectators, a gathering that included Secretary Wilbur of the Navy, Admiral Eberle, Chief of Naval Operations, and Rear Admiral Louis M. Nulton of the United States Naval Academy, Knute Rockne's versatile team from Notre Dame came from behind in the second half with the score 6 to 0 against them to let loose an attack of such savage fury and perfection of execution as to sweep Navy off its feet and carry the South Benders to a 19 to 6 victory.

SIDELIGHTS ON THE GAME

(By. L. S. P. S.)

Weather conditions could hardly have been better for the game on Saturday. The field was in perfect condition after three days of sunny weather, while the moderate atmosphere made things as comfortable as possible for both spectators and players. There was not enough wind to make any appreciable difference in the kicking.

McGill's touchdown in the first few minutes or play was a neat piece of work. Most of the Queen's linemen felt sure that the ball would be given to the robust Littlefield for the final buck and consequently kept their eyes glued on him, while Jack Little encountered little opposition on his side and went through easily.

Harry Batstone's well-known football brain was working overtime on Saturday afternoon. For a time it looked as if the tri-color backfield star would keep McGill at bay and force a tie by returning kicks from behind his own line, something that is not done generally. Batstone gained on the exchange on two occasions, his low kicks bouncing down the field for considerable distances.

Not a few people believed that had Batstone caught Tremain's long spiral during the final seconds of the game, the score might have remained tied. Warren apparently thought there was no time for a return kick, and tried to run the ball out in the face of half a dozen McGill tacklers.

The performance of Ken Tremain at kicking half was a pleasant surprise to McGill supporters. The former R.M.C. star got bad press notices after his initial games in senior rugby, but certainly showed that he has the ability last Saturday. He was outkicked by a few yards by Batstone, and at times his kicks were badly placed, but his plunging and open field running was a treat to watch. He climaxed a good all-round performance by sending a beautiful spiral to Warren in the dying moments of the game to pull out the victory.

Almost every type of scoring known to football was used for points on Saturday. There were two touchdowns, a drop kick, a place kick and several rouges. The only type missing from the score sheet were the convert and the safety touch. Both 'Bubs' Britton and 'Curly' Taylor failed in their attempts to convert.

A successfully executed place kick is something unusual. Those who have followed intercollegiate football for years declare that the memory of a successful place kick is dim in their minds. A week ago, Saturday, at Toronto, the McGill squad attempted the same play but the ball did not even reach the goal line. Against Queen's, Bazin held the ball while Tremain booted true between the posts for as pretty a play as has been seen this season.

McGill's kick formation again came in for some criticism. Tremain was forced to get his kicks underway rapidly, while on several occasions his kicks came very near being blocked. Batstone, on the other hand gave his wings lots of time to get down under kicks, as he waited a few seconds before kicking, his protection being much better.

The touch line seems to be St. Germain's nemesis. In the dying minutes of the game he broke clear of the Queen's line and ran along the side lines to place the ball between the uprights. But the cheering of the rooters and the playing of the band suddenly ceased as Referee O'Brien called the play back to the 30 yard line. He ran forward and forced his way through a group of players to the referee. As he was shown the footprint alleged to be his own a few inches over the touch line, St. Germain merely turned away, shaking his head with remorse.

A year ago at Toronto St. Germain uncorked a brilliant 65 yard run along the sidelines to the goal-line, but again the referee ruled that he had stepped out. As the ruling meant the possible tying of the score, there was considerable discussion before play could continue.

That the morale of the McGill squad was strengthened considerably by the mere appearance of St. Germain appeared evident. When the backfield star appeared, McGill was holding her own 24 yard line. An end run by St. Germain was followed by a beautiful line plunge by Captain Little, who broke clear for thirty yards. Line plunges gained again, and the red team held on Queen's 12 yard line when Bazin's onside was kicked into touch to count one point. It was the finest offensive seen this season.

Jack Little played a wonderful game despite his injured ankle. The McGill captain was the team's most effective line plunger. He plunged for McGill's touch soon after the start of the game while his performance in the final period when he dashed through a broken field for thirty yards was masterly.

D'Arcy Doherty filled the breach when St. Germain was forced to retire, and he did it in a highly creditable manner. The daring passing game developed by the McGill halves was much in evidence even after St. Germain's retirement, Doherty distinguishing himself particularly in the manner in which he nabbed some low and speedy passes.

No little credit for McGill's victory is due to the rooters under the leadership of Fred Urquhart. The parade from the campus to the stadium was the longest in years, the R.V.C. being particularly well represented. Led by the band, attired in neat looking sweaters and new caps, the rooters marched up and found, to their surprise perhaps, that the centre section of the bleachers was left open for them.

So great was the excitement when Warren was rouged for the final point, that a crowd surged on the field, especially at the north end. As there was still a few seconds to play, the field was cleared quickly, and the game continued to its uneventful end.

On undertaking the task of government the Commission found that it was no light one. The press, the church and the people were antagonistic to the form of government but at the end of the speakers period of office the system was working favourably with the support of the people. The Commission had taken advantage of the broad ruling of the League and had set up a Consultative Council which was elected by popular vote but had no authority; nevertheless the changes of laws were in the main acted upon at the opinion of this Council. A Study Committee had also been instituted at the nomination of the government but its duty was more technical than consultive.

Major Stephens went on to say that he had held the offices of Minister of Finance, Food, Forests, at first and then he became Minister of the Interior and latterly Minister of Foreign Affairs in which capacity he acted as the President of the Commission. His salary was $3,000 but he added "It is hard to say how much it cost me while I was there." During the last year of office he sent out 140 congratulations to couples who celebrated their golden weddings and in return he received letters which were very dear to him the whole of which were signed 'your loyal and devoted subjects'. When the people of the Saar composed their National Anthem, so much did they appreciate the work of this industrious Canadian that they dedicated it to him and moreover the Anthem is sung to the tune of 'God Save the King.'

The maintenance of order was rather a difficult problem and it was affected by the presence of French Troops in the Saar, but, said the speaker this is now on an amicable arrangement of having an Inter-Allied body of troops to safe guard the lines of communication through to the Rhineland.
